TACCHO Annual Premier Public Health Conference

Brown County MRC Took First Place

The conference provided the opportunity to showcase public health practices that improve the health of the community. This event was hosted at Texas A&M College Station, where Ashley Belez and Cynthia Minchey presented the Brown County MRC presentation poster, informing how volunteer management in rural communities take steps for the future of public health. The Brownwood/Brown County Health Department was voted first place by attendees which consists of local public health leaders in Texas.
